

Concept Question 13-15: “An impulse in the time domain is equivalent to an infinite number of sinusoids, all with equal amplitude.” Is this a true statement? Can one construct an ideal impulse function?

It is a mathematically true statement, but it is physically not possible to construct a perfect impulse.

s