

Concept Question 13-9: What is the connection between the Fourier series solution method and the phasor-domain solution technique?

The phasor-domain solution method applies to circuits excited by a single sinusoid. The Fourier series extends the phasor-domain method to circuits excited by periodic functions that can be represented by a series of sinusoids.